CAPH. It is ; — And yours too, Isidore ?
Is ID. SERV. It is so.

. Here comes the lord.

Enter TIMON, ALCIBIADES,, and Lords, &;c.

scene of the third Act, where we find in the first folio, p. 86, col. 2,) " Enter Varro's man, meeting others.[5]* I have therefore always annexed Sen?, to the name of the master. MALONE.

Good even, or, as it is sometimes less accurately written, Good den, was the usual salutation from noon, the moment that good morrow became improper. This appears plainly from the following passage in Romeo and Juliet, Act II. Sc. IV. :

" Nurse. God ye good morrow, gentlemen.
" Mercutio. God ye good den, fair gentlewoman.
" Nur. Is it good den ?
 Merc. Tis no less I tell you ; for the. . hand of the dial is now open upon the. . of noon"

So, in Hamlet's greeting to Marcellus, Act I. Sc. I. Sir T. Hanmer and Dr. Warburton, not being aware, I presume, of this wide sense of Good even, have altered it to Good morning; without any necessity, as from the course of the incidents, precedent and subsequent, the day may well be supposed to be turned of noon. TYRWHITT.

5 , — we'll forth again,] i. e. to hunting, from which diversion,, we find by Flavius's speech, he was just returned. It may be here observed, that in our author's time it was the custom to hunt as well after dinner as before. Thus, in Laneham's Account of the Entertainment at Kenelworth Castle, we find that Queen Elizabeth always, while there, hunted in the afternoon ; " Monday was hot, and therefore her highness kept in till jive a dole in the evening ; what time it pleaz'd her to ryde forth into the chase, to hunt the hart of fors ; which found anon, and after sore chased," &c. Again : " Munday the 18th of this July, the weather being hot, her highness kept the castle for coolness 'till about Jive a clok, her majesty in the chase hunted the hart (as before) of forz," &c. So, in Tancred and Gismund, 1592 :  He means this evening in the park to hunt." REED,
